

PROJECT DISCOURSE

A special initiative of

A Community Conversation on Immigration

Imagine - Arizonans of all ages, races, backgrounds, and beliefs:

- Sitting down and really talking about their experiences with the immigration issues that face Arizona
- Respecting diverse points of view and listening with an open mind
- Exploring what each of us can do to bring balance, civility, and creative solutions to conversations about immigration

This is what will happen at the third Project Civil Discourse community conversation.

Thursday, August 19, 2010
6:00 - 9:00 p.m.

Rio Salado Conference Center
2323 West 14th Street, Tempe

Free and Open to the Public
Registration is Required as Space is Limited

The Conversation. Three rounds of topics on immigration will be introduced and discussed throughout the evening. For each round participants will be seated at a table and talk for 20-30 minutes. After each round participants will then move to a new table with new conversational partners. Each round will have different introductions and questions that take us from the past, to the present, to the future. At each table there will unbiased, factual information about immigration.

The first round of conversations will focus on our experiences and thoughts about the current state of immigration in Arizona. In the second conversation, participants will discuss what it would take to make Arizona the place they want for themselves and for future generations.

Next Steps. In the third and final round of the evening, the conversation comes to an individual level and encourages self-organized collaborative action. Ideas and themes generated from the entire conversation will be shared and available to those who participated to help continue the conversation.

About Project Civil Discourse

www.projectcivildiscourse.com

Project Civil Discourse is a special initiative of the Arizona Humanities Council working in collaboration with organizations from around the state to provide opportunities for the public to participate in trainings, forums, and special events that share, model and provide insight on collaborative problem-solving skills. The program goal is to widely share proven skills that can enhance and improve debate and discussion about the important issues that affect our future.
